EASLEY REAPPOINTS GLENN TO CRIMINAL JUSTICE EDUCATION AND TRAINING STANDARDS COMMISSION

RALEIGH – Gov. Mike Easley reappointed John Morton Glenn, Jr. of Burlington to the North Carolina Criminal Justice Education and Training Standards Commission.

Glenn retired in February 2000 as the chief of police of the Burlington Police Department, where he had served since 1968. Prior to his service with the Burlington Police Department he was a data processing technician in the United States Navy. Glenn is a member of both the International and North Carolina Association of Chief's of Police and is past president of the North Carolina Law Enforcement Training Officer's Association. He received his bachelor's degree in social science from Elon University and his master's degree in adult education from the North Carolina Agricultural and Technical University.

The responsibility of the North Carolina Criminal Justice Education and Training Standards Commission is to promulgate rules and regulations, establish educational standards and to certify employees within the criminal justice system. The commission also establishes standards for training schools and instructors, certifies instructors and investigates agencies, schools and individuals. The commission has 26 members who serve three-year terms. The Governor appoints two members.
